

Credit Agricole expands New York team

15/08/2011

Thomas Jean and Kinnary Desai have joined Credit Agricole-CIB's (CA-CIB) transportation group in New York. Jean joins as vice president, transaction manager, while Desai joins as a senior associate. Both have already started in their new roles and are reporting to Brian Bolotin, head of transportation group, Americas.

Jose Abramovici, global head of aviation group and rail finance, says : "We are pleased to support our growing business activities for the Americas with the introduction of new talents in our New York transportation group team."

CA-CIB's New York transportation group handles all clients based in North and Latin America. Clients range from airlines, aircraft and engine lessors and manufacturers.

Before joining Credit Agricole, Thomas Jean was at HSH Norbank's aviation group, and Kinnary Desai was with National Australia Bank. Both were based in New York.
