Lithuanian start-up carrier Heston Airlines has received its first aircraft, confirms chief executive officer Jonas Rincauskas.

The 2004-vintage aircraft is the first of three 180-seat A320s that will start charter and ACMI operations in early 2021.

Heston Airlines is in the process of receiving its air operator's certificate (AOC) and plans to start its European operations next year.

A second aircraft, a 2003-vintage, IAE V2527-A5-powered unit, is expected to be delivered shortly.

According to Airfinance Journal's Fleet Tracker, both units are owned and managed by Genesis Aircraft Services.
