Law firm Mourant Ozannes has announced that Danielle Roman will take over from Paul Christopher as managing partner of its Hong Kong SAR office, as of 1 August.

Roman has practised in Asia for almost 20 years and is ideally positioned to lead the Hong Kong office through the next phase of its growth and development, said the law firm.

She advises on a broad spectrum of cross-border transactions, including fund finance, asset finance (in particular aviation and shipping), acquisition and leveraged finance, debt restructurings and general corporate lending.

Roman has significant expertise in helping major financial institutions, lessors and investors on the financing and leasing of commercial aircraft, corporate jets and other related assets across a variety of structures. She also advises on the finance and leasing of ships, yachts and other vessels.

She leads the Asia Banking and Finance team, is a board member of the fund finance association, is on the advisory board for The Hague Court of Arbitration for aviation and former board member for Advancing Women in Aviation Roundtable.

Prior to joining Mourant in 2012, she worked at Clifford Chance in Hong Kong and Dentons in London.

Christopher has led the Hong Kong team for the past 14 years. He will continue to play a key role as Senior Partner, Asia and Head of the Hong Kong corporate and investment fund practice.
